Libby's Lucky Land Journey

By Libby

Chapter 1

Libby, the ruler of Chocolot Land knew that her and her people needed to find a new land. She had failed her people. There was no more of the sweet smell of chocolate. They had nothing to eat, and pretty soon Rann, the evil ruler was going to go to battle with them over her land. Libby held a town meeting and said "Tomorrow we set out for Gumdrops!"

The next morning Libby and the villagers met at the meeting place and set out for Gumdrops. After many days and weeks they finally made it to Striped Cane. The trees were huge candy canes. There was a big lake that shimmered with stripes of red and white. There was a smell of peppermint in the air. Everyone was resting because of the long journey. We were just relaxing and then suddenly Rann and his men jumped out of the bushes and captured Libby and her people. Libby hung her head in shame. She had failed her people again.

Rann led them back to his castle. His castle was big, dark, and had weird pictures on the walls. The eyes would move when you look at them. Butterflies danced in Libby's stomach. All Libby could think about was getting out of there. Libby was pushed into the dark and gloomy prison cell with the rest of her people in the dungeon.

He said "trying to sneak away, are you?" He left to go talk to his servants. By then Libby had come up with a magnificent plan. The plan was to make a trampoline of bedsprings from the beds in their jail cell. IT WORKED! They all jumped out. They were all on the route for Gumdrops!

By then Rann had found out that they had escaped. They came with all of their weapons and caught up with Libby and her villagers. Long ago her family went on a long journey and found a secret path in the black licorice bushes. She remembered where the path was and took her people on it. Some people were killed by Rann and his men, but many survived. Rann stomped on the ground and yelled, "How could you let them get away?" to his warriors.

Several weeks later the villagers made it to Gumdrops. Gumdrops was very colorful and fun. Everyone was jumping up and down with their heads held high. The next day everyone started building their new homes. Libby went on a walk knowing that Gumdrops would be perfect and that things would get better.
