

The Secret

Helpers

“We have to keep this to ourselves. We can’t even tell our parents,” said Kylee calmly, “this could be BIG for the secret helpers.”

“Let’s start planning,” said Jackson.

Later that night.....

“O.k.” said Jackson, “we are going to walk to the lake that is just a few minutes from my house. That will take us to the legendary forest where the bear lives. Then we will walk on a trail that will take us to the sugar capped mountains. After that we will float in the soda pop river. Finally we will be at the land of awesomeness and gold. Let’s start packing!”

6:00 in the morning the next day.....

“O.k. you guys first up to the lake,” whispered Jackson.

So they floated across the lake and then they hit the legendary forest. The forest was filled with lots of tall green pine trees. It was dark in there and it was a little swampy.

“It’s kind of creepy in here,” murmured Emily.

“It’s o.k. as long as we stick together,” Jackson whispered.

“What exactly are you kids doing in my forest?” yelled a voice.

“Who was that?” whispered Kylee in a scared voice.

“Oh I’m Goldilocks,” said the deep voice.

“Oh then we are o.k.” said Kylee.

“You’re kidding me right? Do you even hear my deep voice?” said the voice.

“Well sorry!” shouted Kylee.

“I’m the legendary bear, duh,” said the bear.

“Gosh, a little mean don’t you think?” muttered Kylee.

“Sorry. Do you feel better now?”

The bear looked very mad and blocked us from going through.

“A little bit. I would feel way better if you let me and my friends go through the forest,” said Kylee very sweetly.

“NO!!!!!!!!!!” yelled the bear, “You have to figure out this riddle first. What is black white and red (read) all over?” questioned the bear.

“Emily you asked us that last week. You know this one!” yelled Jackson.

“Um, um ,um OH OH OH I’ve got it, the newspaper!!!!!!!!!!!!!!” shouted Emily.

“Now you can go,” said the bear.

“Yes!!!!!!!!!!!! You did it!!!!!!!!!!!!!!” shouted Jackson.

So they walked down the forest.

“Now said Jackson we will take a trail to the sugar capped mountains.”

So they walked on the trail until they hit the sugar capped mountains. The sugar capped mountains were very tall and steep. The sugar glistened in the sunlight. By the time they reached the top it had taken them 3 hours.

“O.k. remember to fill your bags with some sugar because we will need some for home,” said Jackson.

It took another 3 hours to get to the bottom of the other side of the mountain.

“Now we need to float down the soda pop river,” continued Jackson.

So they floated down the soda pop river. The water was very fizzy and brown like the color of Dr. Pepper. It felt weird with all the bubbles around them.

“We’re here!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!! Shouted all of them at once.

Along the riverbank they saw a volcano with cave full of gold. They ran up to the cave excitedly. They all filled their bags with gold.

Before they could get out of the cave, a caveman ran towards them and grabbed them while yelling, “What are you doing with my gold? This is my island and my gold.”

The kids were carried off into the cave and tied up. Jackson asked to Kylee and Emily, “How do you plan of getting out of this one?”
