

How Snake Lost His Legs

ALEX O

Once upon a time when the world was new, snake had legs. But he was very careless. Snake was walking through the woods while reading a newspaper and stepped in some quicksand. He tried to get out, but he sunk down even more. Two hours later Scorpion crawled along the path.

Snake cried out, "Please come over here! I'm sinking in quick sand!"

"Grab on to my stinger," Scorpion replied.

Snake grabbed Scorpion's tail. However, Scorpion pulled with all his strength until he was exhausted. Snake hadn't budged. Then, Snake accidentally pulled Scorpion into the quicksand. Scorpion panicked and sunk down.

Snake slapped him across the face and said, "Keep it together man!"

But he wouldn't keep it together so snake knocked him out. When Scorpion woke up, he started yelling at Snake.

Frog yelled, "Dumbbos why are you guys fighting?"

The two in the quicksand asked, "What the heck are you doing here frog?"

Frog said, "No questions. Ok, do you need help by the way?"

Snake and scorpion answered by saying, "Yes please."

So frog grabbed those dumbos. But he couldn't hold that much weight and so he fell in with those two. They all screamed for help. The next day, they woke up and saw that they were almost in the quicksand all the way up to their necks.

They started screaming again. Then they saw a human shadow in the fog.

They yelled, "Please help us or we're all going to die!"

So the person came out of the shadows. But he was only a wimpy kid in a cape.

The boy said, "I'm a wizard and can help you."

Snake said, "Yeah right! You're a wizard, I don't think so."

Frog said, "Be quiet. He's going to help us."

“By the way how did you all get stuck in there?” the Wizard asked.

Scorpion answered, “Snake was clumsy and didn’t watch where he was going. We were pulled in trying to help him out.”

Snake doubted the was going to save them. The boy grabbed a branch and broke off a stick.

He waved the stick and said, “Grab onto my wand.”

The stick magically grew longer until reached the creatures. They were pulled out.

“Where’s my legs little boy?” asked Snake.

“Serves you right for being so careless and rude when I was trying to help you,” said the wizard. “If you complain more, I will put you back into the quick sand.”

The snake slithered away cautiously glaring at the wizard. That’s why snakes have no legs to this day.

